Sudden Thunderstorm Spawns Heroic Actions

At approximately 3:12 this afternoon, observers posted in the choral camp office were jolted by the vision of a dark bank of clouds moving in rapidly from the west. Within minutes, and just barely in time, running volunteers converged on the chapel to close the windows and doors which had been left open in a futile attempt to cool it. In a touching show of solidarity, members of the RBC staff and faculty joined choral camp volunteers to help keep the chapel carpet dry.

The real hero of the afternoon, whose devotion and foresight makes the chapel closers look like they were dodging harder duty, was camp host John Martin. Knowing that the tent for the Choral Camp Cafe had a tendency to blow away, John hustled three other volunteers together and each held one of the four corners of the tent, paying no mind to the driving rain and howling wind, staying at their posts until the storm passed by.

For the first time in the five-year history of the camp, a "Choose-a-Spot" activity had to be postponed due to the weather. During the storm, one unhappy camper complained to her supervisor, "I came to Choral Camp to go to the art room, and you're making me stay in the gym!"

Camp Director Pleased With Early Enthusiasm

Choral Camp 2003 is only a few hours old, and already good reports about Choral Campers are coming in. "Did you hear the first choir practice?" someone asked me. It sounded as good as an end-of-the-week practice usually sounds. I saw something good, too. A brand-new camper was homesick, and his roommates said, "Come with us. We'll show you what to do." I liked what I saw and what I heard.

All week God will be hearing things from this camp—and seeing things. And I hope he likes what he sees and hears. Why? Because the main reason we have Choral Camp is to bring glory to God—to make him feel good. So keep on singing; keep on being kind. And have a wonderful Choral Camp!

Parent Poll

In a new journalistic venture seeking truth in publishing, the Record is requesting reader participate in a courageous e-mail poll.

The Question

The question for today, which may help the camp staff selection process for years to come is just this: Would you trust your kids to these camp counselors??

The Process

Parents (and any other qualified adult readers of the Record) are invited to participate by sending an email to either to yes@rosedale.edu, or to no@rosedale.edu. No text is necessary to register a vote, but comments are welcomed. All comments do become the property of the Record and the right is reserved to print worthy remarks in forthcoming editions of this fine journal.

Q: "What do you get if Bach dies and is reincarnated as twins?"
A: "A pair of Re-bachs."

Q: "If a band were playing music during a lightning storm, who would be in the most danger of being struck by lightning?"
A: "The conductor!"

Psalm of 100:1-5 the Week

- 1 Shout for joy to the LORD, all the earth
- 2 Serve the LORD with gladness; come before him with joyful songs.
- 3 Know that the LORD is God. It is he who made us, and we are his; we are his people, the sheep of his pasture.
- 4 Enter his gates with thanksgiving and his courts with praise; give thanks to him and praise his name.
- 5 For the LORD is good and his love endures forever, his faithfulness continues through all generations.
