Counselor Complains of Bad Hair Day

Junior Counselor Chris Yoder woke Wednesday morning to a bad hair day. It was just the latest in a stunning series of developments at Choral Camp 2003 that has included a missing barrette, bacon at breakfast, and a camper who sang a song.

Yoder, who isn't a girl but occasionally suffers bad hair days, didn't have a lot to say. In an interview he said, "I hate bad hair days." Sources revealed that the root of Yoder's bad hair day stems from the beauty-insensitive water supply of Rosedale. "I know what he's going through," said Camp Director Phyllis

Swartz. "This soft water never gets my hair completely clean."

Yoder says that he misses the hard water in Delaware. "That water gets all the soap and oil and dried-up gel flakes out of my hair. I go through three jars of gel a week. And as you can see, there's probably a jar and a half in my hair right now." The bad hair day has brought Yoder some unexpected benefits. By 11:00, he had overheard three girls say, "His hair isn't bad—it's bad."

Storms Blamed for Two Dead, One Reported Missing

Word on the sidewalk was that two bodies had been found on campus Monday evening. The deceased were apparently discovered under the maple trees, close to the Sport Spot. They were reportedly "very dead," though the cause of death is still unknown. Speculation is that recent storms may have blown the unfortunate victims right out of their homes.

Sources agreed that the bodies were those of juveniles who were "not fully adult." Some indicated that the bodies were "kind of gray" and others that they "looked actually brown." This leaves the investigation with only two certain findings: the bodies were those of birds, and they were very, very dead.

Several counselors indicated that a camper may also be missing. According to Andrew Sharp, the unnamed camper "didn't listen when his counselor told him to go to class," and has not been seen since Monday afternoon's storm. When pressed for a description of the allegedly missing camper, Sharp would only say that he was wearing a red Veggie-Tales T-shirt, and that he was skinny. "It's a shame he was skinny," said Sharp, "The bigger ones at least have some reserve, but the skinny ones are gone within days."

Activities continued on schedule, though campers sometimes felt the need to keep a sharp lookout.

Choral Camp Challenge Won By International Team

Within an hour after Camp Director Swartz reissued the Choral Camp Challenge from Tuesday's Record, a winning entry was received. Suspicion has been raised that one of the winners is related to at least one reporter on the Record staff, but investigation by independent representatives of the Choral Camp Puzzle Board have confirmed the combined efforts of the team.

What is a BAGATELLE?

“A bagel sold at Telluride ski slop”
— Al Yoder, RBC business manager

“Luggage” —Natalie Schrock, camper

“When you catch someone telling a lie and stuff them in a burlap bag”
—Ken Miller, music director

“A small, bi-pedal, pale blue dinosaur” —Drew Donahue, camper

Correct Answer:
“A short, simple musical composition, usually for piano”

“That was lots more fun than a hay ride” —happy camper after the improvised activities in the gym substituted for a rained-out hayride
