Thursday Goes Almost According to Plan

In a surprising new development for Choral Camp 2003, neither rain, nor wind, nor hail, nor busted pipes prevented camp staff from conducting the planned activities for the day. Based on what turned out to be surprisingly accurate hourly forecasts, Super Games were moved up on the schedule into a window of wonderful summer sunshine. It rained during setup and soon after take-down, but during the scheduled play times, the weather was as superb as the games.

DAFFYNITIONS

Allegro: Leg fertilizer

Conductor: A musician who is good at following along with many people at the same time

Lamentoso: With handkerchiefs

Tempo: This is where a headache begins

Friday

Reception Features Snickerdoodles

Breakfast: Pancakes, syrup, boiled eggs, cereal, juice, milk

Lunch: Taco salad, tortilla chips, frozen grapes, chocolate-covered bananas

Reception: Cookies, snickerdoodles, citrus punch.

Parent Poll Tallies 3-0

Only three parents responded to the Record's parent poll in Monday's issue. The question was whether parents would willingly entrust their children to the pictured senior counselors.

Although the response was small, it was unanimous. All said "yes," but all made qualifying comments.

An Indiana mom thought she could trust them because "God looks on the heart." An Ohio mom thought she could, especially if she felt God was calling her children to be a positive influence on the counselors!

Most extensive were the comments from a Virginia grandfather, whose yes was conditional on the counselors being shackled to an RBC faculty member, on being sent to run a choral camp in Antarctica while his grandchildren attended at Rosedale, and also on each of them being finger, foot, and nose printed. He also suggested that those prints be used instead of the "rather threatening" photo printed in Monday's Record.

The Record apologizes for any fright caused by the first photo and submits the requested nose prints along with two extra ones, just for good measure.

Can you pick out which ones belong to the previously pictured counselors?

Quotes of the Day

“She really shouldn’t handle such a high-tech piece of equipment.”

—Austin Jones, after Phyllis accidentally activated the siren on the megaphone

“I think the radio is better.”

—Brooke Beachy, commenting on Counselor Sara’s early morning solo

“Are we going toward New York City? Oh . . . I mean Plain City!”

—Cana Gingerich on Wednesday evening’s hayride

“Fill up my cup, let it overflow!”

—Ken Miller’s daughter, Emilie, as she poured the water from her cupped hands down her arms onto her dress

What is a Glissando?

“Something that grows under Lemuel’s bed” — Dion Gingerich

“To slow way down” — Caleb Zimmerman

“To get louder” — Jeremy Miller

“I don’t know, but my favorite color is blue” — Christy Showalter

“It sounds like it has something to do with music” — Jordan Miller

“A mountain that looks like a cup of water” — Chris Yoder

Correct Answer:

“A rapid run on the piano”

— Renel Kennell

Blissful memories of recorder practice leave Elizabeth unable to focus on her art project.

If you had stood here during SuperGames, you would have been squashed, especially since Drew is driving with his eyes closed!
