Super Games Rise Again

In what has become a familiar routine at choral camp, inflatable playground equipment rose from the ground on Thursday afternoon to become sources of much enjoyment. As the fire-engine slide, obstacle course, and water-battle maze took shape, and as excited clusters of campers gathered at the nine different stations set up on the lawn, it looked very much like a fair had come to Rosedale.

In a highly unusual development, no severe weather threatened to dampen the fun. Also, no injuries were reported from the festivities.

Staff Wearing Out During Second Week of Camp

The Record has been following several stories this week about unhappiness related to waking up in the mornings. An undercover investigation has revealed the cause—some people are getting just plain tired.

Interviews with counselors at supper indicated differing levels of weariness. E.

D., a female counselor, claimed she was tired physically, but not emotionally, and that she was “not sleepy.” A male counselor, when pressed, admitted that when he was alone in his room he felt drained, but insisted that “as soon as I get with the kids, I don’t feel tired at all.”

Music teacher Kevin Yoder, whose appearance suggested he may still be in the good-natured stage of tiredness, reported that he saw a counselor “nodding” in chapel this morning. Counselor R. K. volunteered something about being asleep in music class today, but when asked to clarify her statement, would only admit to “listening with my eyes closed.”

According to Yoder, this counselor from Delaware “may be suffering the most.”

DAFFYNITIONS

Accidentals: Wrong notes

Da capo al fine: I like your hat!

Discord: Not to be confused with datcord

Rest: A short period of quiet, useful for breathing, coughing, or emptying the recorder of saliva

Q: "What kind of snake has red and yellow bands, is highly dangerous, and sings tenor?"
A: "A choral snake."

Quotes of the Day

"The reporter is here—I'm out of here"

—Ken Miller, as a member of the Record staff approached

"My grandma said I should just start a pillow fight"

—young camper, as Phyllis was giving her suggestions for dealing with homesickness

"Is she crazy?"

—Camper, initials C.R., as Phyllis was suggesting putting time capsule cards in socks for safekeeping

"Shaving cream in the ear is earitating"

—a voice of experience?

What is a Scherzo (skairt-so)?

"A quick, short, rapid line of music"
 —Zachary Renne, Beethoven Hall

"It starts with the first three letters of school—I don't want anything to do with it"

—Amber Swartzentruber, Strauss Hall

"A female scarecrow" (properly scherza)
 (C) —Dion Gingerich, counselor

"A musical contraption that frightens the birds in the garden" —Lynette Showalter, music teacher

"A fear of sculptures" —Kari Kauffman and Hannah Peachey, Handel Hall

"A little animal that sneezes really loud and scares people" —Amy Byler, Strauss, and Lydia Kauffman, Mozart

Correct Answer:

A humorous musical composition, often in triple time. Literally, "a joke."

Happy Birthday to Jonathan Miller. The Record wonders if his violin has been sounding a lot like a shofar to him since Wednesday morning.

Reminders to Emily and Melissa from the parent notes in the cafeteria:
 "Emily, make Melissa clean her room"
 "Melissa, remember to brush after meals."

Q: "What did the dollar bill name his daughter?"

A: "Penny"

The Andrew Sharp Corner. Is this a self-examination?
