First Day Plagued by Ailing Heads

Bumper Ball, a very safe and fun game if it's players use their heads!

Choral Camp has, by the grace of God, always been free of serious injuries to campers and camp staff. Safety has been high on the list of concerns during camp planning, leading the directors to remove “bumper ball” or “carpet ball” (the game where billiard balls are rolled at varying speeds in a carpet-lined wooden trough) from the original list of recreational options. The Record has learned that the directors caved under an intense lobbying effort by campers and camp staff and restored the game to its rightful(?) place in the game room.

According to Nurse Althea Beachy, sometime around 10:15, before most campers were even registered, bumper ball led to the first injury of the week. A billiard ball (gently rolled, the Record is sure), somehow managed to leap out of the trough and hit Harmony Troyer “right between the eyes, smashing her glasses into her nose.” Amazingly, perhaps due to the stoutness of her cranium, Miss Troyer never developed a headache.

In a strange twist of fate, the Record has learned this was only the first in a series of head problems. Two other campers and a counselor reported feeling ill with headaches. One camper even spent half the afternoon in the nurses’ office.

An investigation has been started to determine if the head problems are somehow related. Did all four of the patients eat hamburgers for lunch?

Intercultural learning or protective headgear?

Camp Director Predicts Heat, Hardship, Happiness

Welcome to Choral Camp!

Welcome to being hot and working hard and mosquito bites and maybe being a little homesick.

Welcome to shaving cream and water and hay and fire (the campfire type), and to feeling really, really good when you hit just the right note.

Welcome to a glorious week of praising an awesome God!

— Phyllis Swartz

Just Wonderin'

Many personal dramas were played out as parents and campers approached the registration table this morning. Some families were returning to a familiar routine with lots of old friends. Others may have been excited about the possibilities, but faced a lot of unknown people and settings. These different feelings often showed on the faces of the registrants from different families.

In the case of the family pictured at left, the Record is left without a clue. What delights is the camper on the left looking forward to, and what dreadful images are passing through the mind of his brother . . . ?

Q: "What do you get when you throw a piano down a mineshaft?"
A: "A-flat minor!"

Quote of the Day

“If you don’t know what you are doing, just act like you do. That’s what I’ve done most of my life, and it works some of the time!”

—Music Director Ken Miller, during his orientation instructions for music assistants

Boys in Yellow Not Romantics

According to reliable sources, the youngest set of male choral campers, identified by the yellow on their nametags, actually stuck out their tongues, yelled “eww,” and made other expressions of disgust during Kevin Yoder’s music class today. The girls just giggled. All this was in response to the discovery that they would be studying the Romantic period of music history!

Attitudes improved when Mr. Yoder explained the music was not necessarily related to personal affection between a guy and a gal, but rather with music that stirred feelings of all types.
