Massive storm descends on Choral Camp Chapel building converted into temporary shelter

Counselors are nearly blown away as the storm moves in.

The trees do a rain dance.

Cheerful campers take shelter in the chapel building, oblivious to Kajan's sensitive nature.

Little Kajan tries to be brave and hospitable.

ROSEDALE, Ohio -- Choral Campers scrambled for shelter as a VERY WINDY thunderstorm blew through town this afternoon.

Quick-witted camp staff rounded campers up and led them into the chapel building, where camp mascot Kajan tried to put a brave face on it and be welcoming. Sadly, he couldn't manage it and fell back on the ancient monkey hear-no-evil defense system.

Not that anything evil was going on; the decibel level in the foyer did, however, rise to unprecedented levels as campers staked out their territory for the duration of the storm.

Asked to comment on the Great Storm of '11, music director Ken Miller said, "Storm? What storm?"

His wife, music instructor Jenny Miller, was not so cavalier. With tears in her eyes, she said, "Andy Peterson was willing to risk his life to keep me safe."

After temporarily losing control of her emotions, Jenny continued, "He helped me get to the classroom building to deliver a very important message to the teachers there." The journey was made on a golf cart, known to be unsafe at any speed on wet surfaces.

A letter to campers from Debbie!

Dear Choral Campers,

As I locked up my office last night, I marveled at how everything seemed so quiet and still. Today as I walk the Choral Camp sidewalks, I'm rejoicing in the exuberance and life you bring to campus.

Thanks for your high 5's, excited conversations, and joyful worship. I am so glad you're here and look forward to a wonderful week of camp with you!

Musical jokes wanted!

Drop them off in Vicki's office, in the chapel building.

Can you solve the mystery?

We've got some new signs on campus, but they're making the campers' and staff's heads spin. Everyone's trying to figure out the mystery song! If you think you might know what song it is, see Melanie Graber. You'll be very happy you did!

Hint: We are very blessed to have this song in the hymnal.

Thank you, Grabers, for these beautiful signs.

tuesday's menu
