Get wet! Get wet! Get wet! Get wet!

A Choral Camp first—kittens!

ROSEDALE, Ohio -- Yesterday dawned bright and clear at the Ken D "The Dude" Miller household, and with the dawn came something new — six kittens! The babies and their mother, Dr. Snow, are all doing well.

Music teacher Jenny Miller was not surprised by the birth of the kittens. "We knew this was coming," she said.

Dr. Snow has been living with the Miller family for a couple of years, ever since Andrew Miller rescued her from the side of the road. She was just a kitten herself! A kitten with a broken leg and a terrible case of fleas.

Unfortunately, the Millers were about to leave for vacation, so they asked the Zieglers if they could take care of her. Wendy Ziegler (Nurse Wendy) put a splint on Dr. Snow's leg and bathed her, then let the Ziegler family cat nurse her.

President Dan, a known cat fan, told The Record, "Dr. Snow looked so pitiful that she broke your heart." He added, "It is just a wonderful joy that she survived to raise her own family."

The Millers couldn't be more proud. Said daughter Carrie, "At first, every time she saw her kittens, she went and sat on them. I thought it was rude." On further reflection, though, she said she "realized it's because she's such a wonderful mother."

Looking thoughtful, Carrie concluded, "She sits on them like my mom sat on me."

We think she means that in a good way.

Let's hear it for the cooks! They cook from dawn till dark ...

Lydia Miller

Head cook Holly Miller

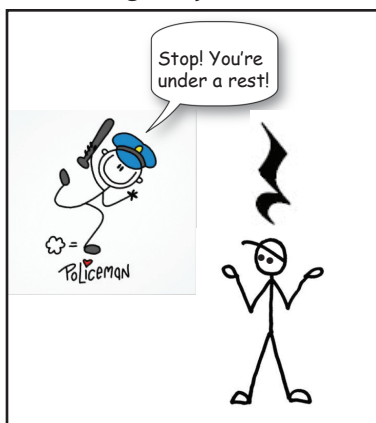

Stephanie Jones

...yet they're still smiling! Thank you for all your hard work and for the delicious food you make for us!

Nobody really knows what happened to Choral Camp's head cook, Holly Miller, least of all Holly. All we can get out of her is this: "I was getting the cans of vegetables down from the shelves, and all of a sudden, I looked at my hand, and I thought, 'That doesn't look right.'" It didn't feel right, either. That's because Holly broke her hand! Right before Choral Camp! Yet she's still cooking for us. Wow. Thank you, Holly, Lydia, Stephanie, and all the other kitchen crew. You guys rock!

A good joke ...

...thanks to Sarah Hostetler!
