Choral Camp Taken Over By a Group of Giant Pandas???

Yesterday, while campers were settling into their first choir at Choral Camp, something incredibly strange happened! Annika, Assistant Hall leader for Strauss Hall, came running in the student center, out of breath and looking frantically for Choral Camp's fearless directors Kirk Kauffman and Megan McGaffey. When she found them, she wildly began spilling a tale. Except, she only told one sentence of the story, over and over again.

"There were only a couple of them at first," she said excitedly and much too fast. "And now-- they're EVERYWHERE!" Kirk and Megan tried to calm her down so they could get more of the story out of her, but Annika could not be calmed. Finally, after giving her a cup of grape juice, Annika began to tell more of her tale.

"I was clamly walking into Strauss Hall," she started, "When suddenly I noticed several strangers in the hallway! I had never seen them at Choral Camp before and I knew they weren't any of our campers. What's more, they weren't even humans! They were a group of Ailurop-odaa Melanoleuca! (More commonly know as the Giant Panda.)"

After that, Annika sat down in shock, too startled to finish telling Kirk and Megan what happened.

Questions arose. Where had the pandas comes from? Why were they at Choral Camp? Did they want to learn music? Had they gotten lost? Did they need help?

"We must get to the bottom of this!" Kirk declared. He called in Rosedale's Private Investigators and put them on the case immediately.

After a careful search of the Rosedale Record Archives for clues to see if Giant Pandas had ever come to camp before, the Private Investigators found an incredibly helpful story.

"Stauss Hall has Doorway into China??" the article title read. According to the reliable Record, several campers discovered a doorway into China in their room in Strauss Hall. And apparently, the Giant Pandas had now discovered the door as well.

Now that the Giant Pandas have been rounded up and returned to their homeland, the question remains: will Choral Camp receive another panda stampede this week? Campers, please report any unusual sightings of this fascinating creature to our trusty camp directors!
