Choral Camp wakes the Rosedale Rodent

Lately many campers have caught a shadow peeping around the corners. But for some strange reason there is never anything there when they get a closer look. The Record has discovered that there is indeed something going on. With all the hurried stomping and rushed walking that has happened in the classroom building this week the Rosedale Rodent has finally awoken from hibernation. The Rosedale Rodent is a medium sized hamster-like creature that hibernates in the basement of the classroom building. It sleeps the whole year and only wakes up for Choral Camp. The tranquil rodent feeds off of all the food the crew forgets to put away after meal times and leftover popcorn in the reading room. The Rosedale Rodent might not be big, but he is swift on his feet.

The Rodent is a shy fellow so he spends his days happily watching the classes go on but gets scared if someone gets close. He does however celebrate on the inside whenever students improve on their music skills. Last night Clay, John Luke, and Noah went down to the basement to check on our little fellow. Afterward John Luke shared what happened. "We were able to say hi to him and offer a couple extra pillows." and as they chilled with the rodent they found out he's a close cousin of the capybara. So next time you see something in the corner of your eye you will know...it's just our friendly Rosedale Rodent running around.

Super Games a Bouncing Success

Super Games came onto campus with its usual color and bounce this year at camp. It was a beautiful summer day and the sun was out as campers bounced, played, slid, relayed and ran through the different stations directed by enthusiastic members of The Crew. One first time camper exclaimed, "It's awesome!" when asked how he liked Super Games. Another camper was overheard yelling, "I love Super Games!!" while running to her next station. The bouncy fun wore some campers out though. As campers settled back into TAP class one camper was heard to say, "It feels good to be back to music!"
