Time-Travel, Dinosaurs, and a not-so-secret Wednesday adventure!

Campers, the secret is out: the mysterious Wednesday activity was going to be a campus wide time-travel trip. Choral camp recently acquired an incredible time-traveling device that had the potential to send all campers and counselors back into the days of monks and Gregorian Chant! Your counselors and fearless Choral Camp leaders tried so hard to keep the upcoming trip strictly confidential, but yesterday, after a series of unfortunate events, the truth came out. In the early hours of the morning in Strauss hall, a slightly terrifying and completely unexpected guest arrived. And who was this guest? None other than a dinosaur (whose name is Dabbasheth, according to several reliable and not at all sketchy sources)!

Strauss campers yelled in confusion as Dabbasheth came roaring down the hallway, looking for a tasty branch—or camper—to nibble on. The Choral Camp authorities, mathematician and musician Ken Miller and Camp Pastor Matt Showalter, were instantly called to investigate how this hungry guest had appeared on campus. After conducting a brief investigation, they got to the bottom of the case.

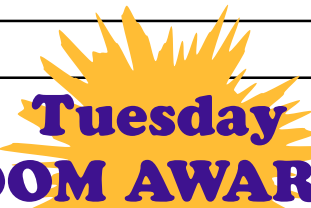

"Our Marvelous Leaders Kirk and Liz were conducting a test run on the time-travel device," Pastor Matt explained in an interview, "and the device backfired! Instead of sending Liz and Kirk on a time-traveling trip, it sent dinosaurs from way way way back in the day to us!"

Ken, our resident mathematician, added: "It's truly incredible from a mathematical standpoint what that device did, and is capable of."

Ken went on to explain, however, that because of several math equations the record reports didn't quite understand, the time-traveling device is no longer fit to be used until it can be properly fixed. Unfortunately, this means no more mysterious Wednesday activity. Campers, be on the look-out for Dabbasheth and any more unexpected guests!
